Technical Advisory Panels

---

What do panel members do?

The panels provide a forum for over 1,000 industrialists with common interests. Each meets 3 times per year to:

- discuss topical industrial issues
- select and steer research
- enjoy early access to research results
- consider the impact of developing legislation
- network with industrialists and peers
- develop their professional skills

Which panel should you join?

There are currently 12 panels. Their names reflect their interests - some are sector based whilst some are discipline based. More detailed information* on the interests of each panel, along with the minutes of meetings and frequently asked questions can be found at www.campden.co.uk/research/panels.htm.

What does a meeting involve?

Typically, meetings start mid-morning and finish mid-afternoon with networking breaks for refreshments and lunch. Each panel is chaired by an industrial member and includes:

- Presentations by experts from industry, Government and Campden BRI
- Discussion of topical issues
- Brainstorming ideas to solve pre-competitive problems

Free answers to short enquiries. Prepaid member service. What do these mean?

As a member, we are keen for you to telephone or email us to ask a question as and when you need to.

We need to manage the time we spend answering member enquiries to ensure that you get value for money and that we continue to thrive as a business.

We use guidelines to determine whether your enquiry is one that we can deal with free of charge or one for which we would need to charge (at the members' special rate).

An enquiry that is treated as "free" is one that we can deal with very quickly (typically within 20 minutes). For longer enquiries, unless instructed otherwise, we use your Prepaid Member Service allowance. As you get close to the limit of your annual allowance you will have the option of purchasing additional enquiry time at reasonable rates.
